When congregants are in need of help, we get cooking. We also have social action programs, “Books and Bagels,” the Women’s Club, a growing library, a choir, and A Klez Act (our klezmer band).

Here, in our school, children are introduced to the tenets of Judaism. And here on Shabbat morning in “Holy Scrollers” discussions of the weekly Torah portions, men and women further their Jewish educations.
In our inspirational Shabbat and holiday services, we worship together and apart, quietly and in song, with hope tempered by the experience of loss, with a communal sense of support and purpose.

We've got a prayer.

We are grateful in particular to all those over the last century who built and nurtured and supported the Jewish community of the lower Connecticut River Valley, and we are committed to carrying their vital work forward.

We remember.
